2016 WASHINGTON POST GUIDE DISTRIBUTION

129,500 inserted in the Post on Sunday, Oct. 30

To determine which Post “zones” should receive this guide, our first priority was reaching communities served by our local charities. We then made sure we reached zones with the highest percentages of federal employees. We inserted guides in the 75 Post zones with the most federal employees.

Within many of these zones, we chose areas (“microzones”) with the highest incomes. The average household income for the subscribers who received our guides was nearly $150,000.

We used the Post’s demographic information for each zone to determine that 17.6% of the Post subscribers who received our guides were federal employees – 22,800. Another 1.4% of Post subscribers are military personnel – 1,814.

2016 Holiday Guide Distribution

More than 41,000 guides distributed, all by hand or mail

- 38,200 distributed by hand at or near 42 Metro stations near federal agencies as well as at large suburban Metro stations (see list below). Our eight distributors did 87 distributions (one distributor, one day) during the early morning rush hour over a 4-week period in December, when many people make their CFC pledges. As usual, the DC CFC extended its campaign to Dec. 31. We began distributing on Giving Tuesday, Nov. 30.

We focused on Metro stations near federal buildings, high-volume suburban commuter stations (Shady Grove, Franconia/Springfield) and close-in commuter stations (Bethesda, Dupont Circle, Friendship Heights). We did every station with a nearby federal or military agency, reaching 121 offices. Interestingly, our distributors found most people even more receptive to taking our guides in December, during the holiday giving season.

- 3,000 mailed to high-income donors (above $175,000) in the San Francisco Bay area and Southern CA. The exact areas where we mailed guides depended on the communities served by our local CA charities.
